Facilitator moves

THE MAIN MOVE

"Is that always true?" When someone says "people like that never change," invite a counterexample.

Then ask: "What is up to you in that relationship?"

When the room needs help

- Silence. Wait ten seconds. Ask, "What might the relative believe?"
- Dominating. "Let's hear from someone who hasn't spoken and wants to."
- Venting. "What is up to you in that relationship?"
- Names slipping in. "Let's keep it anonymous: what happened, not who."
- Abuse described. Don't ask them to understand an abuser. Protection comes first.
- Giving advice. "What has helped you with someone similar?"

PROTECT THE TIME

Give each question about eight minutes and start the practice by minute 65. If time is short, skip the reveal. Begin the close by minute 80 and finish at 90.

When asked for your view

Offer it briefly: "Here's my tentative view. What would make you doubt it?" Keep the question open.

Notes and follow-up

Fuller explanations, sample responses, and the readings are in this meeting's expanded guide and Meeting Primer. Key texts: Marcus Aurelius, Meditations 2.1, 5.20, and 11.18; Epictetus, Enchiridion 42.

Difficult People

How do I stay decent toward people who make it hard?

Today looks at difficult people through a short passage from Marcus Aurelius. Understanding someone isn't excusing them; it's seeing them accurately so we can act well.

THE MEETING

Date: _____ Place: _____

90 minutes of discussion · Everyday Problems

Before you begin

Silence your phone, set a quiet timer, and keep this guide open. Have the reading ready on a phone or printout, and a pen for your own notes. Keep examples anonymous: no names or workplaces.

Open (10 minutes)

Welcome. Challenge ideas, give reasons, and share the floor. Passing is always fine, and a made-up example works as well as a personal one. If the group met last month, invite one brief report on the practice.

Ask the whole group: "Who has been hard to deal with lately?" No names or workplaces; a sentence each is enough.

Read (10 minutes)

READ ALOUD · MARCUS AURELIUS, MEDITATIONS 2.1

Read the passage aloud from the linked text or the QR code.

Marcus expects to meet meddling, ungrateful, and arrogant people. They act from ignorance of good and bad; they share his nature, and we are made to work together.

Meditations 2.1

Read it a second time, slowly. Ask: "Which line would you want to remember?" Then move to the discussion.

Welcome; keep it anonymous	Aloud, twice	Questions 1–5	Say your own 2.1	One takeaway each

Discuss

1. Marcus expects difficult people every morning. Is that pessimistic or practical?

Probe: How might expecting it change your response?

2. Think of that person. What might they believe that makes their behavior make sense?

Probe: Does that belief change how you see them?

3. Does understanding someone mean excusing them?

Probe: Can you hold someone responsible without hating them?

4. In a difficult relationship, what is genuinely up to you?

Probe: What would a fair boundary look like?

5. What does justice ask of you toward people you don't like?

Probe: Where does fairness end and putting up with harm begin?

GOING DEEPER · IF THE ROOM IS READY

Marcus says no one can harm him, because no one can make him act badly. Do you believe that?

Practice: morning preparation

Start with this case, or use a volunteer's example if one is ready. A relative criticizes your choices at every family gathering. Another gathering is this weekend, and you're already rehearsing comebacks.

Work through the steps aloud. Take two or three answers at each step.

1. Prepare. Who might test me, and how? Name the situation, not the person.
2. Understand. What might they believe that explains it? Stay general; don't invent motives.
3. Choose. How do I want to treat them?

IF TIME ALLOWS · THE REVEAL

You learn the relative has been lonely since a spouse died and feels left out of family decisions.

Probe: What changes in how you see them? What stays the same in how you'll act?

Understanding isn't excusing. Marcus still judges conduct; he refuses to add hatred.

Close

Return to the opening: "How do I stay decent toward people who make it hard?" Take one or two answers. Invite each person to choose one occasion to try the practice; anyone may pass.

UNTIL NEXT TIME · MORNING PREPARATION

Before a hard encounter, say your own version of 2.1.

Thank members, confirm the next meeting, and finish on time. Next time: What's Actually Good? If money, health, and reputation aren't the goal, what is?

After the meeting: send a short recap through your group's usual channel with one or two observations and the three steps.
